Our current program:

Finance for Non-finance professionals

Why Finance training matters

Finance is an important yardstick to judge the performance of companies and individuals. All Managers have to understand the importance and relevance of finance while making any business decision, whether one is in R&D, marketing, sales, manufacturing, or any other function.

The Finance for Non-Finance programme is designed to develop financial skills among professionals working in non-finance functions like HR, Production, Marketing, Sales, R&D, etc. This will be helpful in making business decisions and facilitate smooth communication with finance teams.

Programme: Finance for Non-finance Professionals

Our two-day programme guide will explain how finance functions operate in a corporate and help you understand the use of the information provided by different functions, while preparing financial statements. Participants will gain an understanding in terms of techniques and principles used to prepare the financial statements.

The programme will also focus on the different types of costs involved and the relevance of each while making a decision along with working capital management, variance analysis, among other things.

The program objective is to raise the level of financial awareness of professionals and enable them to use the financial information to make better short-term or long-term decisions in managing their businesses.
